Maurice Woodhams, an old and respected pioneer of this county died Friday last in San Jose after a long and severe illness, Mr. Woodhams was a native of New York, and was 78 years of age, having been born in Westchester county on March 23, 1830. His father, the late Joseph Woodhams, was a miller, and the son follower that business in New York and from 1843 to 1850, in Chile. He came with his father to this state in the fall of 1850, and moved to this county in 1861, Mr. Woodhams resided on his extensive ranch n ar La Honda and with relatives in San Jose, Berkeley and Oakland. He is survived by his widow, Irene B. Wood hams and three sons, Maurice S. of San Francisco, Ralph Edward of San Jose and Alfred W. of Pescad ro. He was a brother of Alfred R. Woodhams of Santa Clara and the late Oscar Woodhams of San Francisco, Miss Mary E. Woodhams of Santa Clara and Mrs. Lucy Smith of San Francisco.

The funeral was held Saturday and was conducted by the Society of California Pioneers of San Jose. The interment was in Santa Clara.

Those who acted as pallbearers, all near relatives of the deceased, were: W. E. Woodhams, Charles Woodhams, Edgar Woodhams, Alfred Woodhams and M. P. Brasch.

D. E. O'KEEFE, Editor and Proprietor

The proposition of the Million Club of San Francisco to annex the County of San Mateo will be met with a strong opposition by the people of tao county who can see no benefit to be derived from an alliance with the great city. We would be the tail to the kite, an outlaying district as it were, neglected and with no hope of getting any justice. We were at one time a part of San Francisco and the pioneers saw fit to withdraw and form what is now San Mateo County. If there was a good reason for this there is certainly a sufficient ground now for retaining our individuality, San Mateo County's representatives at Sacramento should fight this scheme of the San Francisco boosters to the bitter end, San Mateo county is one of the most thriving counties in the state, forging ahead as the natural lo-

A most amusing thing occurred one evening upon our arrival at a small town in New Zealand. We found awaiting us at the station the local carriage and pair, with the local undertaker as footman. He was garbed in his usual funereal suit of black, but he had substituted a white tie in order to relieve the situation somewhat, and, evidently with a desire to dispel any morbid impressions he might otherwise have created, he commenced to whistle a selection of the most cheerful tunes he knew, while he held the door open for us and helped us into the carriage.-Clara Butt in Musical Home Journal.

A Beggar in a Basket. Perhaps the most curious use to which Mexicans put their baskets is to hold gamecocks. Sometimes the cock's basket is woven for the purpose; oftener it is made from a sombrero, the wide, high crowned, straw hat of the country, into which the bird is put, a hole cut in the crown to give him air and the brim carefully tied down that he may not escape. The bullfight has been called the national sport of Mexico, but cockfighting is much more universal, for the humblest peasant may have his gamecock, which he keeps in a carefully made cage in his patio, watches with pride and tends with

One of the strangest uses to which a basket has probably ever been put was the daily appearance in the streets of a young man carrying in a huge bushel basket on his shoulders his greatgrandmother, of unknown age, who held out a skinny hand to the passerby for the centavo which was almost unfailingly given. Waterproof Coats of Gress, In the tropics of Mexico, where torrential rains fall a part of each year, raincoats are a very necessary part of man's apparel. Owing to the intense heat which prevails in the summer season the ordinary rubber raincoat cannot be worn. A rainproof coat is made from native grasses and is worn by the men of the middle and upper classes. The grasses are woven close together, and it is impossible for the rain to beat through them, no matter how hard the storm may be. Some of these coats are made with a hood which protects the head as well as the body.

San cooking-roasting and boiling by sunlight instead of coal or gas-has been going on for 300 years. There are sun stoves that roast a sirioin or boil a soup to perfection. They are only used, however, by scientists. A sun stove consists mainly of a mirrora spherical mirror on a joint. There is also a reflector. The place for pot or plate is so situated that the mirror's rays can be focused on, it accurately. A German, Baron Tchernhausen, was the first sun cook. He began in 1687 to boil water, and in 1688 he had very good success at baking eggs. Sir John Herschel and Buffton are other famous names associated with sun cooking. In California various sun cooks have boiled a gallon of water in twenty minutes, roasted meat in two hours and poached eggs in fifteen minutesquite as good time as the ordinary fire makes. An odd thing about meat roasted by sun rays is that it has an unpleasant taste. This is avoided by the insertion of a plate of yellow glass between meat and mirror. Queer English Laws. "No statute law of England ever can be obsolete," a legal journal says. "Once enacted, it continues in binding force until repealed."

If such be really the case, there ought to be some lively times ahead for several classes of the community. For instance, what will builders have to say to the act which penalizes any person who erects a house without at teching to it at least four acres of man said to his mate. "I tell you, land? This was one of "good Queen Bess' " laws, and it has most certainly never been repealed. By another unrepealed statute, which dates back to the first year of King James I., it is enacted that not more than a penny may be charged for a quart of the best old ale nor more than a halfpenny for a like quantity of small beer. The penalty for each infraction of the act is 20 shillings, so that if it were rigidly enforced it would not need, apparently, a licensing bill to ruin the brewers. > The First Mourning Paper. The oldest known letter written on black edged note paper as a sign of mourning appears to be one dated Jan. 5, 1683. In Addison's comedy of "The Drummer," 1715, reference is made to the fashion in the words, "My lady's mourning paper that is blacked at the edges." A few years later Allan Ramsay, who died in 1758, speaks in one of his poems of "the sable bordered sheet" as a messenger of sorrow. Mann, writing from Italy to Horace Walpole in 1745, says that it was universally used in Florence at that time. The superior elegance of this Italian note paper, with its narrow margin of black, explains its ready acceptance in this country, where it superseded the quarto sheet with a black border sometimes a quarter of an inch wide. In this way it probably gave an impetus to the fashion. But it is a mistake to suppose, as some have done, that the fashion was introduced from Italy.--London Answers.

An Awkward Player.
In 1608 King James published his worship less rigid, ordered that certain of the sports therein commended should be played in the several churchyards every Sunday at the close of divine service. John Ross, a minister of Blairgowrie, adopted a novel method of withstanding the royal ordinance. He was a strong, athletic man and seemed much interested in the recreations enjoined by the monarch. Football was selected by the parishioners of Blairgowrle from the list of "Sunday games." When the services of the church were completed Mr. Ross appeared among his people in the churchyard and joined them in their sport. None of the assemblage kicked more. eagerly at the football than did the reverend incumbent. But constant misfortune seemed to attend him. Every kick missed the ball and fell heavily on the ankles of those who stood near. Apologies were promptly tendered and, of course, received, though every Sunday many of the parishioners returned home halting. Finally it was agreed that on account of the minister's awkwardness the games should be abandoned. Thus the ingenious divine gained his end and prevented compliance with the obnoxious

How Mayne Reid Won His Bride.

It was through his novel, "The Scalp Hunters," that Captain Mayne Reid won a bride. He was thirty years old when he met a damsel of thirteen, with whom he at once fell in love. The child took no notice of him, but he gave her the story to read. Two years later the young lady was at a public meeting where Captain Reid spoke on behalf of the Polish refugees. "An electric thrill seemed to pass through me as he entered the room," she said afterward, and when the meeting was over she went up to him. "I leave for London on the next train," he said hurriedly. "Please send me your address." "I do not know where," she replied, with some embarrassment. He instantly handed out his card and was gone. A formal little note followed: "Dear Captain Reid-As you asked me to send you my address, I do so." By return of post came the answer, "Only say that you love me and I will be with you at once," and then the reply. "I think I do love you."
